Personal Data

Saab Automobile AB (hereafter referred to as Saab) attaches great importance to the protection of your privacy and the protection of your personal data. Therefore, we would like to inform you hereinafter how we handle and ensure the protection of your personal data:

All data collected when the user visits the website of Saab will be treated confidentially in accordance with the applicable provisions of the applicable data protection law.

When user visits our website, Saab, on a standard basis, will record the date and the duration of the visit, the name of user's internet service provider and the website from which user accessed the Saab Techinfo site. Saab collects these data in an anonymous way and analyzes the data statistically so as to find out how attractive its website is and to continually improve the contents thereof.

In addition, we record personal data provided by user only upon explicit consent in each case. The personal data collected at the website of Saab Techinfo are recorded and processed for the exclusive purpose of individually processing user's account, transmitting product information and submitting offers and, as the case may be, will be passed on to Saab or Saab dealers with approval of the user.

Saab makes arrangements in order to ensure the protection of personal data. Saab will not sell personal data to third parties nor otherwise market them. The user may, at any time, ask in writing which personal data about the user are recorded. In the event that, despite all efforts, incorrect information has been recorded, Saab will correct it upon user's request. User may also require that we block and/or erase your data to the extent not required for current contractual relationships. Any such request can be addressed to info@saabtechinfo.com.
